

How can children understand their gender and sexuality in today's culture and education system? It starts with discipleship.

Created for a Purpose (CFAP) is a series of discipleship materials that teach children about their identity and purpose starting with God's Word. Kids need to recognize that their identity is not rooted in their gender or sexuality but in who God created them to be.

Ephesians 2:10 is CFAP's key verse: "For we are God's masterpiece. He has created us anew in Christ Jesus, so we can do the good things he planned for us long ago." Children will explore this and other truths from God's Word to discover who God says they really are. The lessons are timed so that they correspond with what is typically taught at school, building a foundation that will help them interpret messages from school, friends or the culture.

It is ideal for parents to be the ones who introduce their kids to the topics of sexuality (including homosexuality and the world's views about sex); and gender (including the world's views about self). CFAP's parent guide has helpful background information, tips, and encouragement. The children's workbooks are filled with age-specific, engaging activities to solidify the lessons they are learning. With these materials, you will create a keepsake scrapbook to chronicle their journey of discovering their identity in Christ.

Charlotte Goulding, editor and coauthor of My Child, My Chance, graduated from Memorial University of Newfoundland in 2004. She has since split her time being a stay-at-home-mom and an employee in health care. Her knowledge of human health and anatomy and her commitment to truth and God's Word has added valuable perspective and clarity to this project. Charlotte and her husband live in Newfoundland with their four children.

Kim Hanson has taught and directed children's ministry for over ten years. She is passionate about families and growing kids in Christ. As a key contributor to Created for a Purpose, Kim is drawing on her extensive children's ministry experience to design lessons that will help children understand who God made them to be. Kim and her husband have two active boys.
